Practice Profile

Prior to calling to the Bar, David practised for several years as a solicitor in the top-ranked Commercial Litigation team at McGrigors. As a solicitor, David represented clients in all areas of commercial disputes. He advised in numerous actions in the Court of Session and Sheriff Courts, at arbitration and in the Lands Tribunal. David also appeared regularly in the Sheriff Courts, including at debate and proof. Since calling to the Bar, David has appeared in the Inner and Outer Houses of the Court of Session and in the Sheriff Courts.

In addition to his expertise in general contractual matters, David has significant experience in property litigation (including landlord and tenant), banking and credit, PFI and procurement disputes. David has assisted clients in a number of other specialist areas including: corporate governance, insolvency, insurance, judicial review, partnership, personal injury, planning, product liability, professional negligence, tax and trusts. As a solicitor, he advised clients from a number of specialist sectors, among them financial services, energy, infrastructure, construction and aviation.
